MARONAN PROJECT: SILVER-LEAD & COPPER-GOLD

Personnel and Infrastructure

A program of recruitment, reviewing historical data and establishing a Cloncurry base for the Maronan Metals team commenced shortly after listing.

Andrew Barker, recently the Superintendent – Discovery with Evolution Mining at the Lake Cowal operation, accepted the role of leading the Maronan exploration program. Andrew and his family will relocate to Cloncurry and he will start with Maronan Metals in late August.

Townsville based Gnostic Exploration Services Pty Ltd were engaged to provide specialist field team members and two Senior Geologists and a Senior Field Technician have been employed.

A large shed with grounds used to receive, process and store drill core was secured in Cloncurry through a lease agreement and an automated core cutter and range of equipment has been ordered to facilitate the pending program.

In parallel with establishing the core processing facility, drill core from historical drill programs is being relocated from Red Metal's storage yard. A priority list of holes has been developed for re-logging and where necessary re-sampling.

With Red Metal's introduction, Maronan Metals has maintained good working relationships with the Landowner and Native Title party.

Practical health and safety procedures are being set in place.

Re-Logging Program

Maronan Metals has commenced a program of relogging and infill sampling of existing core from the early 2000's through to the last drill program completed by Red Metal in 2014.

The objectives of this program is to unify existing geology logging and to identify areas that require additional infill sampling.

Maronan Metals has secured the services of Dr Clemens Augustine, an expert in broader scale geological and structural interpretation and modelling to assist in target identification and deposit modelling. This work program will commence late in the September quarter.

Initial Drill Program

During the quarter, a drill rig was secured with reputable drilling contractor DDH1 Pty Ltd. The drill, which is working less than 10km from Maronan, is currently expected to be on site early August.

An initial two drill holes have been designed to test shallower extensions to the copper-gold mineralisation with a third hole designed to test the continuity of thick, high-grade intervals of lead-silver mineralisation centred on the northern fold structure. Details about the program will be discussed upon commencement of drilling.
